

How to Save form data

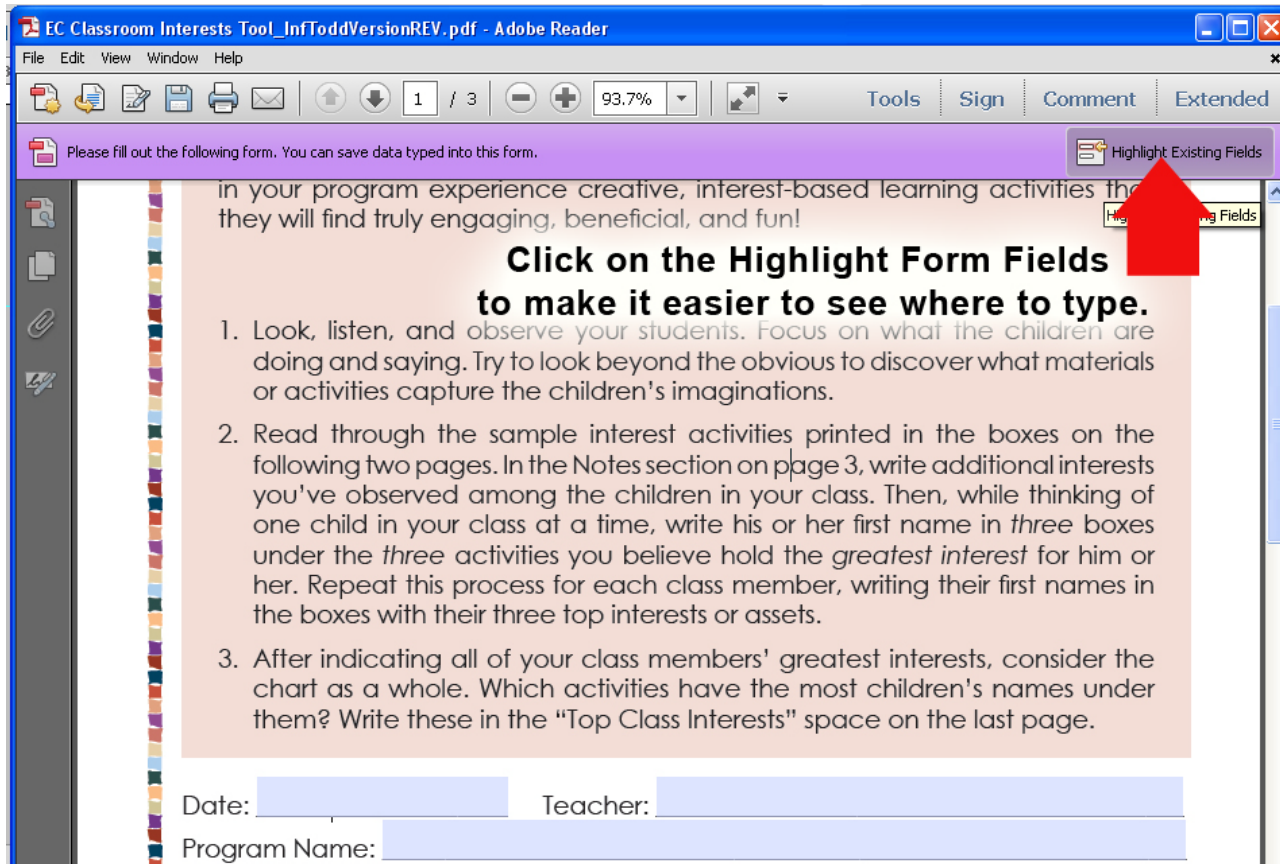

You must have Adobe Acrobat Reader version 9 or newer.

Go here: (we do not endorse the Google toolbar) <http://get.adobe.com/reader/>

When you first open the document you should see the Action Bar which allows you to highlight the places you may type in your information. If it is not visible follow the instructions in the below image.

You should then see the screen below:

Then you will be able to type your data into the form fields and either print it or save it to your computer. Be sure to give the file a unique name so you do not save over the original form. Then by opening the original you may fill in information for different classrooms.

2. Read through the sample interest activities printed in the boxes on the following two pages. In the Notes section on page 3, write additional interests you've observed among the children in your class. Then, while thinking of one child in your class at a time, write his or her first name in three boxes under the three activities you believe hold the greatest interest for him or her. Repeat this process for each class member, writing their first names in the boxes with their three top interests or assets.

3. After indicating all of your class members' greatest interests, consider the chart as a whole. Which activities have the most children's names under them? Write these in the "Top Class Interests" space on the last page.
